

PREFACE

The Department of Linguistics of the University of Arizona is pleased to present Volume IV in its continuing series of working papers, the Coyote Papers. This volume represents work by graduate students and by faculty in the Department, and has been edited by Esmeralda Martin-Callejo-Manandise, a Ph.D. candidate currently at work on a doctoral dissertation on Basque. These papers (as with all papers in the Coyote series) represent work in progress at Arizona which we feel will be of significant interest to researchers elsewhere working on similar areas.
