Dear Readers:

In the absence of a comprehensive program of scholarships and financial aid the University of Arizona would be unable to fulfill its mission of providing high quality education to the people of Arizona and of the nation. If it were not for the financial assistance we provide in the form of grants and loans, higher education would be reserved only for the wealthy.

Although the University is able to allocate considerable federal and state funds to qualified students, experience has shown that public money alone is unequal to our needs. For that reason I would like to pay special tribute to those private and corporate donors whose impressive generosity has made available the wide range of awards recorded in this publication. Past, present and future students alike stand in their debt.

Few investments are nobler than investments in higher education. Without them society can never reap the benefits represented by brainpower and this state would be a poorer place. With the help of financial aid we can free students to concentrate on their academic programs so that they might attain the full achievements of which they are capable.

To High School Counselors,
University of Arizona
Deans, Directors and Department Heads:

Please use this catalog as a reference showing what scholarships are available. Note, however, that students need not go through the catalog looking for scholarships for which they would be eligible. Instead, please have the students apply early, and urge them to list their activities and honors on the last page of the application. The University of Arizona Scholarships and Financial Aids SAFE application is available in late December or early January for the following academic year, and students should apply as early as possible, by March 15th for timely processing.

For the most current financial aid information, please consult the most recent brochure from our office. Thank you for your help in alerting students to the fine scholarship and financial aid programs available at the University of Arizona.

Frank Felix, Acting Director
Scholarships and Financial Aids

To The Donors:

Student assistance in the form of scholarships became a part of the University of Arizona at an early date. The Scholarship Office, however, was not recognized as such until 1941 when a Secretary for Scholarships was provided to Dean Gerretson of the College of Education who was then Chairman of the Scholarship Committee. At that time, practically the only scholarships available to students were Athletic Grants-In-Aid and a number of non-donor awards provided by the Arizona Board of Regents.

By 1947 when the first Baird scholarships were awarded, considerable donor contact had already been made and this has continued throughout the years. The University of Arizona is far ahead of most of the institutions in the entire Rocky Mountain and Coastal Section of the United States due to donor scholarships having been emphasized throughout our existence as an office.

At one time, eighty percent of the entire University of Arizona Endowment was specifically designated for scholarship assistance. This percentage has slipped slightly in the last few years with major programs such as the drive to build a new cancer center being conducted.

The scholarships office deeply appreciates the fine support from friends and alumni for students at the University of Arizona. We have been fortunate to have a broad base of scholarship development including many individuals, businesses, industries and foundations. Those of you contemplating new or additional gifts to assist deserving students at the university may send checks designated for a particular scholarship to the University of Arizona Foundation, the University of Arizona Development Office or the University of Arizona Office of Scholarships and Financial Aids.

Donors can certainly be proud of the contributions of students who have completed their academic careers through scholarship assistance; we look forward to current and future scholarship students also being assets to their community, nation and world.

If you have questions at any time or would like to talk to a member of our staff, please get in touch with me at 602-621-1473 or through the University of Arizona Scholarship Development Office, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ 85721.

Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education

The Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE) is organized under a Compact among the 13 western states so that qualified students of states that do not possess certain professional schools are enabled to attend such schools in other states at a cost that is approximately the same as the cost to residents of the other state in question. The states in the Compact are: Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

Under the Student Exchange Program, qualified Arizona residents who wish to attend professional schools of osteopathic medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, occupational therapy, and optometry may be eligible to receive WICHE benefits. Students must have maintained at least average grades in their pre-professional work and must have been legal residents of Arizona for at least the last five years. Recipients are required to return to Arizona to practice or to repay a portion of the funds expended in their behalf.

For further information, interested students are referred to Dr. Robert W. Sankey, Administration Building Room 116, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona 85721.

In addition, the University of Arizona has entered into an agreement through WICHE for students interested in various other curricula. Under this program, Arizona residents who wish to major in ceramic engineering or petroleum engineering may attend certain out-of-state schools at essentially the same expense as in-state students pay at those schools. Likewise, non-resident students from other participating states may attend the University of Arizona to major in geological engineering, metallurgical engineering, mining engineering, geochronology, hydrology, and Oriental studies, and if there is no such program in their home state, have their out-of-state tuition waived.

For further information on the programs in... geological engineering, metallurgical engineering, and mining engineering, interested students are referred to the Office of the Dean, College of Mines. For further information on the programs in geochronology, hydrology, and Oriental studies, students should write to the Office of Admissions and Records.

Cooperative Education Program

The Cooperative Education Program provides students, in many academic majors, with a unique opportunity to earn money and obtain invaluable career-related experience in business, industry, or government service by alternating periods of full-time work and study. Students are often able to pay a substantial portion of their own educational expenses thus reducing the burden on their parents and avoiding having to place themselves in debt.

Inquiries should be addressed: Cooperative Education Program, Room 235 Harvill Building, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ 85721.

Graduate Assistantships and Associateships

Teaching and research assistantships and associateships are available in numerous fields of study. In addition, the University awards a number of academic (registration fee) scholarships and nonresident tuition scholarships. Except by permission of the Dean of the Graduate College, a student may hold a graduate assistantship or associateship only in the department of his major subject, with the exception that a student in education may hold an assistantship or associateship in either education or his field of teaching.

Tuition and Fees—Graduate assistants and associates are exempt from nonresident tuition, and from music fees applicable to courses in their major field.

Minimum Course Load—Graduate assistants and associates are required to register for at least six units of graduate work as a condition of their appointments.

Additional Information—All communications regarding graduate assistantships and associateships should be addressed to the head of the department concerned.

Both graduate assistantships and associateships in teaching and in research are available in most departments of the University. Approximately 1700 of these positions are available, many of them for first-year graduate students. Salaries vary, but first-year graduate students carrying a full course load may expect to receive at least $2,250 for the academic year for service not exceeding 10 hours a week. Larger salaries with additional work and a reduced academic load are offered. Several departments also administer funds which provide grants-in-aid.

Applicants who are interested in one of these positions should make inquiry of the appropriate head of department.
