Interpretations -- Summary of Extension Teaching Activities --
All Extension Workers

This report is to determine quantitatively some of the more important teaching techniques used to reach Extension's clientele. No attempt is made in this report to get a total picture of how a staff member does his extension work or to measure the efficiency of individual workers.

Activities are to be reported by project areas as follows:

- Project Area III - Agricultural Production, Management and Natural Resource Development
- Project Area IV - Marketing and Utilization of Farm Products
- Project Area V - Home Economics
- Project Area VI - 4-H Youth Development
- Project Area VII - Resource Development and Public Affairs

1. Include number of special studies or surveys made in each project area to aid in identifying and solving problems of people or present new opportunities for extension work. If two or more members of State or county staff participated in the same study or survey effort, the person having the responsibility for the activity should report it. When equal responsibility is shared, it should be decided which one will report. Place number of special studies surveys in appropriate project area column.
2. Report number of field trials, tests and result demonstrations in appropriate project area column. If two or more members of extension staff are involved follow rule on Number 1 above.
3. Include all individual staff efforts to provide individuals with guidance, advice and information, i.e., farm, home and other out-of-office visits, office calls and telephone calls. Where specialists accompany agents on field visits to individual homes or farms report only once. Report number in appropriate project area column.
4. Include all individual staff efforts that provide advice, guidance and information to organizations and agencies both public and private. Report number in appropriate project area column. Do not report more than once if more than one individual staff member is involved.

5. Report number of all extension planning development and other committee meetings including subcommittee meetings in appropriate project area columns, i.e., Agricultural Production Committee meetings in column III, Marketing Committees in column IV, Home Economics in column V, 4-H Youth Development in column VI, and Overall Development Committees and RAD in VII.
6. Include all meetings to train local leaders and the number of different leaders trained. Use appropriate project area columns.
7. Report all other meetings at which you participated as a professional extension worker.
8. Report each news story, feature article, and personal column released by you directly to a newspaper or magazine as one item. This includes suggested stories prepared by the State office and released by agents to news media. The same story sent to several outlets should be reported only once. Information given to reporters or writers as the basis for a story should also be reported. News stories prepared by local leaders should not be reported. The State office should report stories released directly to news outlets but not stories prepared for release through county offices.
9. Report number of copies of bulletins, circulars, leaflets, and other materials related to subject matter and organization aspects of extension work. Include such materials prepared in the county office as well as those of State and Federal origin. Commercial publications are not to be counted unless they are recommended by the State office. See item 10.
- 10a. Include commodity letters, newsletters, postcards, self-mailers, envelope stuffers and all messages sent by mail to specific audiences for a specific purpose. Do not include letters to individuals.
- 10b. Report total number of pieces mailed.
11. A broadcast is a single presentation on the air. It may be given in person or by transcription. An extension worker does not have to appear on the program so long as he is responsible for its preparation. Information given to station announcers or writers and used as the basis for a broadcast is also to be reported.
12. Same as above.

Instructions for Project VI -- 4-H Youth Development

- 1a. The number of different 4-H Clubs in the county is to be reported under this item. A 4-H Club is an organized group of boys and/or girls with officers and a planned program which is carried on throughout all or a large part of the year.
- b. The number of 4-H special interest groups in the county not as highly organized as the clubs listed above. They may have only one meeting or it may be a series of meetings usually concentrated in a shorter period of time.
- c. The number of groups worked with, special interest or clubs but not labeled 4-H groups. They might be Scout groups, FFA and FHA chapters, Boys' Clubs, Junior Achievement groups, etc.

2. In the appropriate blank report all enrollees nine years old and under, ten years old, etc.

3. Self-explanatory.

4. Farm: Report number of 4-H members who live on a farm. Use 1960 U.S. Census definition. "It's a farm if less than ten acres of land but has over $250 income from the sale of farm products or if it is more than ten acres and has $50 or more income from farm produce."

Rural non-farm: Report number of 4-H members who live in towns of 2,500 or less and not farm as defined above.

Urban: Report number of 4-H members living in concentrations of over 2,500 people but not in suburbs of larger cities (100,000 or more).

Suburban: Report number of 4-H members who live in the suburban areas of the larger cities (100,000 or more).

5a. No explanation needed.

b. Report the number of different individuals of 4-H age worked with but who were not counted as 4-H Club members.

c. Report the number worked with out of 4-H and 18 years of age and over but single.

6. Report the number of 4-H members, boys and girls, receiving training through organized extension programs and identified with projects and/or activities. Experience has shown that an activity in one county may have much greater educational impact than a project in another. Report the number who received training in the areas listed. Several areas are listed to get information for national awards programs. They are marked with an asterisk (*).

7. Report the number of different boys and girls by type of projects conducted - agriculture, home economics and others.
8. Special teen-age nutrition programs are programs for teen-agers other than the regular foods and nutrition projects, i.e., special teen-age nutrition conferences, camps, special interest groups, short courses, etc.
