THE UNIVERSITY

The University of Arizona, an integral part of the state system of public education, was established in 1885 and during the past three-quarters of a century has developed into one of the great educational institutions of the West. It is organized as 13 colleges and some 25 divisions of research and special service. The bachelor's degree is offered in 174 fields, the master's degree in 76, and the doctor's degree in 43. More than 100,000 former students now reside in every community of Arizona, in every state, and in many foreign countries throughout the world.

THE COLLEGE OF LAW

In 1965 the College of Law celebrates a fiftieth anniversary, professional instruction in law having begun at The University of Arizona in 1915. The first law degrees were conferred three years later.

The development of the law program at the University has paralleled the striking growth of Arizona. For many years the college has been fully accredited by the American Bar Association and the Association of American Law Schools. Of its more than 1300 graduates about two-thirds reside in Arizona, where they constitute 50% of the practicing bar, and the rest are distributed among 36 states and several foreign countries.

A new Law Building was occupied in 1960. It has been carefully designed to meet all present day requirements of legal education, and includes modern class and seminar rooms, a courtroom, offices for the law faculty, the Arizona Law Review, and The Student Bar Association, commodious reading and study rooms, and a convenient Law Library.

The Law Library includes the reported cases of all the state courts of last resort and the federal courts, as well as cases from other American courts and foreign common-law jurisdictions, federal administrative reports, American and English statutory law, the leading legal periodicals, and a carefully selected collection of legal encyclopedias, digests, treatises, textbooks, and special services. The University Library also is available for use by students of the College of Law.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Applications for admission to the College of Law must be submitted upon forms obtained from the University Director of Admissions, and should be filed by July 15 for first-semester registration.

Students commencing the study of law will be accepted only at the beginning of the first semester. Students who have satisfactorily completed one full semester or more in an approved law school may register for either semester.

An applicant for admission must present evidence of good character and proof:

1. That he holds a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university, or,
2. That he has earned in such college or university at least three-fourths of the credits acceptable for a bachelor's degree on the basis of a 4-year period of study in residence at The University of Arizona, with a grade average at least five-tenths of a grade point better than that required for his graduation from the institution attended.*

Grade averages required for admission are based upon all work undertaken, whether passed or failed, exclusive of nontheory courses such as military science, hygiene, domestic arts, physical education, vocal or instrumental music, practice teaching, and teaching methods and techniques.

In computing the number of credits required under the admission plan numbered "2" above, the following rules shall apply: Nontheory work shall be excluded, except that "required" nontheory courses may be included up to 10 percent of the total credit offered for admission. Credit earned by correspondence or examination is not acceptable. Credit earned by extension is acceptable when the courses were conducted in regular class sessions, by and under the personal supervision of members of the instructional staff of an accredited college or university in which the student was concurrently enrolled for residence work.

At the time of admission a written statement as to previous attendance at and application for admission to other law schools will be required.

Applicants who do not qualify for classification as legal resident students for tuition purposes and have not completed 30 or more semester hours of their prelaw credit at a college or university in Arizona may be subject to somewhat more stringent admission requirements.

PRELEGAL STUDIES

Although no specific courses are required for admission to the College of Law, prelaw students are advised to follow one of the standard curricula prescribed by the college in which they are registered for their prelegal work. In selecting their elective subjects they are advised to choose from courses open to them in economics, mathematics, sociology, government, English, speech, foreign language, history, philosophy, and psychology. Facility in English is essential to the successful study and practice of law, and a knowledge of elementary accounting is desirable.

LAW SCHOOL ADMISSION TEST

All applicants for admission as beginning law students must take the Law School Admission Test, given by the Educational Testing Service, before enrolling. This requirement may be postponed for good cause, but in such case the test must be taken at the first opportunity after entering this college. For permission to take the test applicants should write promptly to Law School Admission Test, Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, New Jersey, requesting an application blank and bulletin of information. The tests are given four times a year at The University of Arizona and other centers throughout the United States.

*Beginning in September, 1967, all applicants for admission to the College of Law must present a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution and an undergraduate grade average of 3.0000 (C), or better, computed as described above.

SPECIAL STUDENTS

A limited number of students with fewer than the academic credits required of candidates for the law degree may be admitted as special students. An applicant for admission as a special student must be at least 23 years of age, and his experience and educational training must have been such as, in the judgment of the law faculty, to have specially equipped him for the successful study of law. The number of special students admitted to the College of Law each year is limited to 10 percent of the average number of students admitted by the College of Law as beginning regular students during the two preceding academic years. Application for admission as a special student must be made to the Registrar and Director of Admissions of the University well in advance of the beginning of the regular academic year for the purpose of submission to the Dean of the College of Law. Such applications will be considered and acted upon at the first meeting of the law faculty after September 1 of each year. Special students are not candidates for the law degree and upon completion of their law study are not eligible for the bar examination in Arizona nor in such other states as require graduation from law school as a prerequisite for bar admission.

TRANSFER STUDENTS

A student transferring to the College of Law of The University of Arizona will not be given credit toward the law degree for courses of law pursued in another American law school which at the time the credit was earned was not a member of the Association of American Law Schools or approved or provisionally approved by the American Bar Association; provided, however, that credit may be given for work taken in an American law school within three calendar years immediately preceding its provisional approval by the American Bar Association.

A student transferring from a law school which is a member of the Association of American Law Schools and approved or provisionally approved by the American Bar Association will be given credit toward the law degree for courses satisfactorily completed with a grade of 3 (C) or better, with allowance for proper equation of credit.

A transferring student must present evidence of good character, and,

1. An official transcript of his prelegal course of study which must be sufficient to meet the requirements for admission to the College of Law of The University of Arizona.

2. An official transcript of his law study.

3. A letter from the dean of the law school from which he is transferring to the effect that he is at present eligible to register or continue in that law school.

Admission will not be granted to a student who has been disqualified or placed on probation in another law school or who has a weighted average on all law work previously attempted which is below that required for graduation from the law school attended.

Transferring students who do not qualify for classification as legal resident students for tuition purposes and have not completed 30 or more semester hours of their prelaw credit at a college or university in Arizona may be subject to somewhat more stringent admission requirements.

REQUIREMENTS FOR BACHELOR OF LAWS DEGREE

To earn the Bachelor of Laws degree a candidate must:

1. Have met fully all prelegal requirements for admission to the College of Law as a candidate for such degree.

2. Have completed at least 6 semesters or the equivalent in residence study of law in accredited law schools. The course may be accelerated by summer study, two law summer sessions at The University of Arizona being equivalent to one semester. When part of the law study has been done in other accredited law schools, the work of the final two semesters, comprising not fewer than 27 units of law credits, must be done in residence in this University. "Completed . . . in residence study" means that a student has enrolled and taken examinations in a schedule of work represented by a minimum of 10 class hours per week, but in case a student fails to pass work equal to 9 class hours per week, he shall not receive "residence credit" in excess of the ratio that the hours passed bear to 9.

3. Have secured by and during such residence study not fewer than 80 units of credit in courses of law study, in which must be included the courses of law study above designated as "Required." A grade average of 3.0000 is required for all courses of law study undertaken at The University of Arizona.

Required courses must be taken in preference to elective courses, in the order in which they appear in the curriculum.

COMBINED COURSES OF STUDY

For students with the qualifications for admission to the College of Law in or before September, 1966, the University offers a combined course whereby they may qualify for the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, or Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, and the degree of Bachelor of Laws, in 6 years. Registration is in the College of Liberal Arts or the College of Business and Public Administration for four years and in the College of Law for two years, but the work of the fourth year is in law and the student must have fulfilled the requirements for admission to this college. Prelaw students who wish to pursue such a course are referred to the requirements outlined for the College of Liberal Arts and the College of Business and Public Administration in the University Catalogue.

Students in certain other colleges may be candidates for degrees awarded upon completion of similar combined programs upon meeting equivalent requirements and upon petition to and approval by the faculties of their respective colleges and the College of Law.

Students transferring from other institutions may not register for the elective work in law under a combined program without first meeting the residence requirement of 30 units of prelaw credit in The University of Arizona.

In order to qualify for the law degree students who are registered in the combined course must meet all the requirements of the College of Law in effect at the time they start their law study, or for the year of graduation from the College of Law. The grade average of 3.0000 or better exacted for the law degree applies to all law credit, including the law courses taken during the fourth year of the combined course.

GRADING SYSTEM

Final grades are awarded in accordance with the following ratings: 1, superior; 2, above average; 3, average; 4, below average; 5, failure; and 0, no credit. 7 indicates incomplete work, and 8 an approved withdrawal. The right to withdraw from law courses with a grade of 8 is limited to the first six weeks of classes; thereafter this grade will be awarded only for good cause approved by the faculty. But required courses may not be dropped after six weeks, nor elective courses so dropped retaken for credit.

CREDIT HOURS AND ATTENDANCE

A student may not register for more than 15 credit hours. Students with outside employment in excess of 10 hours a week must reduce their course load proportionately.

Regular attendance at classes and thorough preparation of all assigned work is required. A student may be disqualified at any time for neglect of his academic duties.

MINIMUM SCHOLASTIC REQUIREMENTS

The following rules apply to students in the College of Law, including students registered for law course work under combined programs with other colleges of the University.

A student who fails to maintain a cumulative grade average of 3.0000, or better, for all work attempted will be deemed on probation and will be disqualified at the end of the next semester unless he then has the following cumulative grade average, or better: 3.3, if he has completed at least 22 but fewer than 50 units of law work; 3.15, if he has completed 50 or more units of such work. For this purpose a student shall be deemed to have "completed" all law courses in which he has been awarded a grade other than 7 or 8. In addition to the foregoing, and whether or not he is deemed on probation, a student who fails to receive passing grades in at least 60 percent of the units carried for any one semester will be disqualified.

A student disqualified once for scholastic reasons may be readmitted only as follows: at the next regular examination period for such courses, he may take re-examinations in any courses in which he has received a grade lower than 3. If by substituting his grades upon re-examination for his official grades in those courses he would have the required scholastic standing as provided above, he shall be entitled to re-enroll. Following a second disqualification a student shall be ineligible for readmission. Grades obtained upon re-examination will be considered solely for the purpose of determining the student's right to re-enter following disqualification, and will not be entered upon his official record, nor affect the computation of his grade average for any other purpose. A student on re-examination must fulfill the requirements of the current examination in the course even though its content may have changed.

A semester, as used herein, means either the regular fall semester, the regular spring semester, or if summer session is attended, then such summer session plus the next regular semester attended.

HONOR SYSTEM

All student work and examinations in the College of Law of The University of Arizona are traditionally conducted under the honor system, which is designed to inculcate a respect for the ethical standards of the profession and an understanding of the manner in which they are enforced. Enrollment in the College implies an undertaking by the student to conform to the rules of the honor system. In the rare instances of alleged infringement the Board of Governors of The Student Bar Association is charged with the duty of conducting hearings and recommending appropriate disciplinary action.

ARIZONA LAW REVIEW

The Arizona Law Review is a legal periodical published twice each year under the auspices of the College of Law. Its purpose is to give expression to legal scholarship, and to serve the profession and the public by the timely discussion of legal problems, with emphasis upon those of special concern to Arizona and the West. It is conducted, under the general supervision of faculty advisers, by a student Board of Editors whose members are selected on the basis of scholastic attainment and evidence of superior aptitude for legal research and writing.

MOOT COURT PROGRAM

The Fegly Moot Court competition affords students an opportunity for experience in briefing and arguing cases on appeal. This competition, open in the first instance to all members of the first-year class, is an elimination contest extending throughout the three years of the law course. From the third-year participants a team is selected to represent the College in the National Moot Court competition sponsored by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

STUDENT BAR ASSOCIATION

All students in the College of Law are members of The Student Bar Association of The University of Arizona, which is modeled after the organized bar. The Association maintains liaison between the students and the faculty, administers the honor system and the moot court program, and performs numerous other services for the student body. It is a charter member of the American Law Student Association, an affiliate of the American Bar Association.

LAW CLERKSHIP PROGRAM

Under the sponsorship of the Junior Bar Conference of the State Bar of Arizona, the College of Law offers a law clerkship program which makes it possible for a number of second- and third-year law students to associate with cooperating Arizona law offices during the summer months. The purpose is to afford the student an opportunity to observe the application of the law in practice and to take part in the work of a law office to the extent permissible before admission to the bar. Participation in the program is voluntary.
